the F!NK bracelet

Designed by gold and silversmith Rohan Nicol, the funky clasp is part of its unique aesthetic appeal.

The Bracelet is made in hard anodised aluminium giving it strength and durability, and is available in matt black and a polished silver finish.

As the first piece of jewellery to be added to the unique F!NK range, the bracelet is suitable for both males and females.

the F!NK neckpieces

Extending F!NK's jewellery offering, these funky neckpieces are the result of another collaborative project between jeweller/designer Bronwyn Riddiford and Robert Foster. They are designed to be adaptable to a wide range of styles, age groups and sex.

These simple organic forms play with the notion of symmetry and balance. The multi-use of colour utilises both light and shadow to reflect the simplistic lines of the form and highlight the duality of the shape.

Each piece is hung on a neoprene band (the thickness varies with each shape) with a sterling silver toggle so that the length can be easily altered. The three pieces are available in a range of coloured anodised aluminium and stainless steel.

the F!NK brooch

These sensual brooches were originally designed by Robert Foster in 1984. After numerous requests FINK finally decided to put them into production.

Foster's has evoked a true sense of feeling and emotion into the shape of the object and has used colour to highlight different emotions: deep red for Love, silver for Honour and purple for Bravery. The real essence of giving a F!NK brooch is to communicate your true feelings.

THE F!NK STORAGE VESSELS

Mr Squash, Mrs Squash and Junior Squash. Based on an art pieces Robert Foster created in 2003, these multi-purpose storage vessels playfully explores the notion of the recycling of aluminium and how cans are squashed. The serendipity of Foster's pressing technique used to create this storage vessel has resulted in a unique contorted pattern which also resembles a smiling face (both sad and happy grins) similar to that of clown, and the domed lid mimics a clown's hat, instilling the product with humour and quirkiness.

FINK provides you with the ability to mix and match your own combination, to suit your decor. The three different sized vessels come in a brushed finish in silver, black or charcoal. Lids are available in red, orange, blue, black and white

THE F!NK POURER

Once again Robert Foster reinvents the way liquid is poured as the unique handle challenges the user to pour at a right angle. This grasp technique reduces strain on the user by utilizing the weight of the vessel and the structure of the handle to create a sublime and fluid movement.

Melding old-fashioned pitchers with contemporary design, Foster has created a vessel that has multi-functionality, suitable for all kinds of liquids both hot and cold for formal and informal settings. Available in black, charcoal and silver satin with an array of brightly coloured handles in red, orange and yellow.

THE F!NK VAXIS VASE

Robert Foster has created this simple organic form that references a bird in flight. The vase opening alludes to the wing span of the Australian Currawong. Both axes of the opening provide an organized structure suitable for a wide range of floral types and sizes allowing a diverse number of display options.

The minimal interruption of this streamlined shaped vessel creates a stunning stand alone object perfect for any environment. Available in three bold anodized colours of vibrant red, deep blue and midnight black, they are effective in enhancing any floral arrangement.
